

WHAT IS CLAIMED IS:

1. A gaming machine comprising:

variable display means for variably displaying a plurality of symbols;

5 front display means provided in front of the variable display means and configured to enable a player to see at least one of the symbols on the variable display means therethrough, and to display various images;

internal winning combination determination means 10 configured to determine an internal winning combination;

a plurality of operation means with which the player stops the variable display of the variable display means;

stop control means configured to perform a stop control of the variable display of the variable display means based on 15 the determination result of the internal winning combination determination means and on a stop operation of each of the operation means;

game medium payout means configured to pay out a game medium to the player in a case where a stop state of the variable display 20 means stopped by the stop control means corresponds to a predetermined stop state; and display scaling means configured to scale up or down at least one of the symbols and various images displayed on the front display means and/or the variable display means.

25 2. The gaming machine as claimed in claim 1, wherein the display scaling means comprises a convex lens or a Fresnel lens.

3. The gaming machine as claimed in claim 2, wherein a distance between the display scaling means and the front display means is configured to be variable.